The bracelet is grey. Grey depicts the despair and gloom so prevalent in those affected by Diabetes. Silver (polished grey) represents the "lining" or the hope that there will soon be a cure. It is essentially a symbol for increasing awareness by educating the public about the seriousness of Diabetes; it represents an effort to create an effective and productive movement to find a cure for the disease.

The bracelet comes in one size. It is approximately 7 3/4" in circumference.

Having two children with Diabetes, every day we hope and pray for a cure! My children love those LIVESTRONG type bracelets that are all so popular right now and really wanted one for Diabetes. We couldn't find any so we decided to have some manufactured and donate the proceeds to organizations doing research to cure Diabetes.

If you would like to order some bracelets, please do so in one of the following ways:
